HARDING GIVES VIEWS ON LABOR

Honest Labor With Fair Wage, H. C. L. Solution He Says

Marion, O., Sept. 6.—Senator Harding's views on the League of Nations and labor issues were further elaborated by the Republican nominee today on the eve of his departure for Minnesota to make his first campaign speech outside of Ohio.

"Amendment or revision or reconstruction of the league covenant, he declared, still was among the possibilities to be considered when the time came to frame a specific program for international peace. In such a reconstruction, he added, Europe wanted this action to lead the way.

Outlining his labor program, he advocated a closer relationship between employers and employees through joint advisory committees and voluntary arbitration and asserted that although he believed in unionism, he opposed "labor's domination of business or government." He endorsed the labor provision of the Cummings-Esch railway act and declared the cost of living could be reduced only if laborers gave honest effort in return for the present high wages.

Addresses Labor Meeting

The nominee's views on labor issues were voiced at a local Labor Day celebration in a speech which he cut short after the chairman of the meeting had informed him he was exceeding his allotted time. A local speaker who advocated Plumb plan followed the senator on the program to reply to some of the former's statements, but the candidate did not remain. Many times during his speech Senator Harding's declarations were greeted with cheers and tonight statements by several union officials endorsing his stand were made public at Harding headquarters.

The candidate's declaration regarding a league program was made tonight in commenting informally on the visit here yesterday of George W. Wickersham, former Republican attorney general and a league supporter. After his conference with the nominee, Mr. Wickersham issued a statement saying the former would not finally reject the league.

"General Wickersham's statement," said Senator Harding tonight, "calls for no construction from me. We do not write statements for our visitors nor censor their words. This is not a campaign of one mind, nor is there insistence that all Republicans shall think precisely as the nominee thinks."

"I have spoken in the speech of acceptance and again on August 28 on the matter of the League of Nations, and the purpose uttered in these addresses will not be altered.

"It is folly to talk about a specific program. The specific thing must be evolved out of a conference of the best thought and highest capacity which can be brought together, not the dictation of one spokesman. We all are agreed now that amendment or revision or reconstruction is possible and vastly better than reservation. Moreover, Europe is in accord, and has suggested that we lead the way."

"Manifestly the path is opening clearly and we shall play America's big part and hold fast to all America's big ideas. There can be no lack of clarity about that."

Agricultural issues are to have almost exclusive attention in the senator's speech Wednesday at the Minnesota state fair, but he may make short talks at other places during the trip on other subjects. Although he has declared his disinclination to any rear platform or impromptu speech making he is understood to feel that it will be difficult to avoid some modification of his program.

Indorsed By Labor Leaders

Traveling on a special train, the senator and his party will leave Marion early tomorrow morning and will make a mid-afternoon call on Maj. Gen. Wood at Fort Sheridan, near Chicago, on the way north. Accompanying the candidate will be Mrs. Harding, the senator's secretary, George Christian Jr., and a clerical force, who will be kept busy with correspondence and other work during the trip.

At the labor day celebration today, the presiding officer who enforced a time limit on the candidate's speech was Thornton Shaw, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Council of Marion. When interrupted the speaker said he was about four-fifths through his manuscript, and he asked for and was given time to round out his speech in a few impromptu sentences.

William L. Hutchinson, general president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, John H. Potts a member of the National Council of the same organization, and "Dick" Powers, a former leader of the old Knights of Labor, were among those who heard the speech and each issued a statement in support of the Republican nominee.

A comparison of Senator Harding's record with that of Governor Cox's said Mr. Hutchinson, "proves Senator Harding much more favorably inclined to organized labor than the governor. As for the experience of my own craft in connection with Ohio state work under Cox, we have found that work done by contractors who do not recognize the status of men in our organization."

Mr. Potts said that while he thought labor should use the ballot to elect its friends, the procedure as organized by the American Federation of Labor, "discloses the purely partisan aim of helping the Democrats and hurting the Republicans."

MRS. MATTIE HOCKER.

Mrs. Mattie Hocker died at her home, near Matanzas, September 5, after a protracted illness of cancer of the throat, at the age of 56 years, two months and 23 days. Mrs. Hocker, who was originally a Miss Fulkerson, united to marriage with Mr. Weaver Hocker at the age of 19. She had been a consistent and devoted member of the Smallhouse Baptist Church since she was 16 years old.

After funeral services conducted by Rev. R. E. Fuqua, in the presence of an immense congregation at the Equality M. E. Church, Monday the 6th, the remains were buried in the cemetery at that place.

Besides her husband the deceased is survived by three sisters and three brothers: Mesdames Joe W. Robertson, Hartford, Joe Shultz, Narrows, James Barnett, Providence and Squire S. L. Fulkerson, Rockport, Mr. Robert Fulkerson, Equality and Mr. William Fulkerson, of Illinois.

BIRTHDAY DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Stevens entertained with a bountiful dinner at their home Sunday, September 5, in the No creek neighborhood, the occasion being in honor of Mrs. Stevens' father, Mr. W. F. Stevens, of Jeff, Ill. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Stevens and children, Mr. and Mrs. Lon Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Ward and son, Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Wornick and daughter, Helen, Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis, of Dukehurst, Messrs. Ernest Bennett, Homer Lindley, and Sam Shavor, and sister, Miss Ann.

In 1887 she became a follower of Christ and united with the M. E. Church at Prentiss, of which she remained a devoted member to the end.

In addition to her husband Mrs. Wilson is survived by six children, all of whom reside at Prentiss, also two brothers, Messrs. George and Joe Luni, of Galveston and Texarkana, Texas, respectively.

THE BLACK CAT CLUB WITH MISS SIMMERMAN

Miss Winnie Davis Simmerman was hostess to the Black Cat Club Thursday afternoon, September 2nd. A number of interesting games of "500" were played, Mrs. Henderson Murphree winning the prize for high score. After the games a most delicious lunch was served. The guests of the afternoon were: Mrs. C. R. McCallister, Columbus, Ga.; Mrs. Vernon Ligon, Frankfort, Ky.; Mrs. A. C. Porter, City. The club members present were Mesdames L. T. Riley, Henderson Murphree, John Taylor, A. D. Kirk, Misses Lella Glenn, Mattie Duke, Norine Barnett, Mary Laura Pendleton and Mary Marks.

THREE STATES MAY BAN EQUAL RIGHTS

Washington, Sept. 4.—Louisiana, New Jersey and Mississippi are the only states in which women may find themselves unable to vote in the coming general elections, according to suffrage leaders here. All other states were said to have either officially held that adequate provisions for this purpose already were on their statute books or to have arranged for passage of enabling legislation.

Attorney General Roberson, of Mississippi, has written the national woman's party headquarters here that the state constitution requirement of registration at least four months prior to an election precluded any hope of women voting in that state.

In a statement today the party leaders said they had received no replies from the Attorney Generals of Louisiana and New Jersey to requests regarding the status of women voters and, accordingly the situation was in doubt in those states.

APPLES FROM VIRGINIA SENT BY MRS. CUMMINS

Mrs. Tula Pendleton Cummins, of Richmond, Va., recently sent to her brother, Dr. E. B. Pendleton, of this place, several apples of as fine variety as we have ever seen, which were grown in Amherst County, Va. from the spot where William Pendleton, great, great grandfather of Dr. Pendleton was born, and also near the immediate community from which the writer's fore-parents emigrated to Kentucky.

The fruit was grown at the foot of what is known as Tobacco Row, a group of small mountains, of the Old Dominion State.

Mrs. Cummins has gained much fame as a writer, productions from her pen having been accepted and sought for by some of the highest critics and best publishers in the country. Mrs. Cummins has done much writing for the Youth's Companion, and is now a contributor to that magazine.

BIRTHDAY DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Ralph, of Sunnydale, entertained quite a number of their friends and relatives on Sunday, September 5th, with a birthday dinner given in honor of their daughter, Miss Lona, who has a stenographic position at Seco, Ky., and is now at home on a visit.

Besides the immediate family there were about twenty-five guests present, who report a pleasant time.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors who were so kind and helpful during the illness and burial of our wife and mother, Alice A. Ward, and for the kindness of the undertaker, Mr. Casebeer.

BRYAN FORMERLY PUTS BAN ON COX

Will Lead Fight On Wet Candidates Cites Other "Bolts."

Richard Lee in Louisville Herald
Washington, Sept. 6.—William Jennings Bryan, three times Democratic candidate for President, not only will refuse to support Governor Cox, the present Democratic nominee, but he will head a nation-wide movement to elect a two-thirds majority in both Senate and House that will be able to defeat any measure a "wet President" might devise.

This became known tonight following a conference held by the Nebraskan with Wayne B. Wheeler and other national dry leaders at the Hotel Lafayette. Mr. Bryan is known to regard Governor Cox as a "wet" candidate.

Mr. Bryan's paper, the Commoner, will be the official organ of the new "nonpartisan two-thirds dry Congress movement." His first official act occurred today when he wired an appeal to the "drys" for publication in The Commoner. It read something like this:

"As the 'wet' are pledging themselves to support 'wet' candidates without regard to party affiliations, the 'drys' should disregard party lines and secure a Congress two-thirds dry in both houses so that necessary dry laws and appropriations can be passed over the veto of a wet President and so that a wet President may be impeached and removed from office, if by failure to enforce the law he violates his oath of office."

When Mr. Bryan was asked how he reconciled his stand with his reply that he "was still a Democrat" when the Prohibition party offered him the presidential nomination, he said:

"I regard it entirely within my rights as a member of the party. Since I have been active in politics I have known one Democratic president to help elect a Republican president and yet remain a Democrat (in this he referred to the attitude of Grover Cleveland during Mr. Bryan's first campaign for the presidency.) I have also known one prominent Democrat who refused to support a Democratic candidate for president and who obtained his reward in elevation as a Democratic president (referring to President Wilson's attitude in another Bryan campaign.)

"Then I recall the instance of a Republican ex-president helping to elect a Democratic president and still remaining not only a Republican, but quite a prominent one (referring to the late Theodore Roosevelt at the time President Taft was defeated for re-election.)

"Surely with such eminent illustrations as to the latitude allowed members of both parties I should be permitted to remain silent without forfeiting my right to membership in the Democratic party."

Enemy Is Outnumbered.

Mr. Bryan's "mountain top speech," as he styled his Democratic convention oration in behalf of five ill-fated planks, including one on prohibition, will be widely used. In it he hailed the coming of the women voters as a great factor in the campaign. It has been printed in pamphlet form. "The mountain top" reference follows:

"The Bible tells us of a time when the great Elisha was told by his servant that the enemy was too great for them. The prophet answered: 'Fear not. They that be with us are more than they that be against us.' And then he drew aside the veil, and on the mountain top the young man could see horses and chariots that had been invisible before. In just a few days another state will ratify the suffrage amendment, and then on the mountain top you will see the women and the children, our allies in every righteous cause. We shall not fail."

SCHOOL OPENS WITH RECORD ENROLLMENT

Hartford Graded and High School opened Monday morning, Sept. 6th, with propitious prospects for a great school year. The chapel was filled almost to overflowing, with pupils, patrons and friends. Rev. E. Watt Smith conducted the devotional exercises. Hon. Otto C. Martin, a member of the school board, represented the board and made a splendid speech, emphasizing the necessity of co-operation between parents, pupils and teachers. Prof. Henry Leach, one of Ohio County's best educators and a former teacher in the High School here, offered many good suggestions to the pupils in his talk. He especially emphasized the proper attitude of the pupil toward the teacher and his school work. Music was rendered by Miss Kathleen Turner and Amelia Barnett, graduates of the class of 1920, of Hartford High School.

The day was spent in enrolling the pupils, examining those who desired promotion and organizing the school.

There were 165 enrolled in the grades, and 109 in the high school department, fifty-eight of the latter number being pupils from out of town. This is by far the largest opening enrollment in the High School within the history of the institution.

The board is arranging to employ another teacher. This will make four teachers giving full time to high school work.

SINGING CONVENTION AT WILLIAMS' MINES

The South Side Singing Convention was held at Williams' Mines Sunday, Aug. 29th, with five choirs present. The Convention was called to order by Frank Duke and formerly opened by song and prayer service by Mr. G. W. Bennett, after which officers were elected as follows: G. P. Jones, Chairman and L. B. Loney, Secretary.

The following choirs and leaders were in attendance: Liberty, Horace Taylor; Independence, Eugene Hibbs; Mt. Hermon, Mrs. Lydia Westfield; Williams Mines, Bert Lee; Pond Run, Horace Taylor. A juvenile choir conducted by Eugene Hibbs, was present and also participated in the program. Several quartets were rendered by members of the various choirs and G. P. Jones rendered a temperance solo.

This meeting of the Convention was unusually interesting and successful, the songs being better rendered than at any previous meeting. The convention adjourned to meet at Liberty, on the 5th Sunday in October, 1920.

MORE FREAKS.

Dr. G. B. Dockery, of Benver Dan, brought to the Republican office a stalk of corn last Saturday, on which there were thirteen ears, or shoots, all bearing corn. They were, in fact, subdivisions of two ears, growing from two shanks. The doctor said he took the first stalk, or the one nearest the gnt, and that he could have, in all probability, found corn further down in the field that would have made this particular stalk look like nothing.

TEDDY, JR., WILL NOT BE FOILED

Will Use Airplane To Fill Speaking Engage- ment.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 4.—"Sure I'll fly! Delighted to do it," said Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt at Republican headquarters in Chicago when he was told that the citizens of Okmulgee, Okla., were extremely anxious to have him speak to them next Tuesday.

"Wire them at once to complete their arrangements, and do not let anything interfere with it."

Capt. Victor Heintz, assistant to Chairman Will H. Hays, of the Republican Committee, had received a telegram from the Republicans in Okmulgee, asking that Colonel Roosevelt address them on his forthcoming trip with Raymond Robles to the West. The original tour as planned for speeches in Tulsa, Okla., Tuesday afternoon, September 8, and Wichita, Kan., September 9. Okmulgee is south of Tulsa and on account of train connections it was impossible to visit that city.

"If you will have Colonel Roosevelt come," wired the Okmulgee Republican, "we will provide him with a fine Curtis Orle machine. He can leave for Tulsa after his afternoon meeting and be in Wichita in plenty of time for his speech next day." Colonel Roosevelt readily agreed to the trip.

Colonel Roosevelt came to Chicago today, preparatory to starting out on his Western speaking trip next Monday. He was met at the LaSalle street station by a committee, consisting of United States Senator Harry New, of Indianapolis, Mrs. Christine Bradley South, women's secretary of national committee; Mrs. Manley L. Fosseen, director of the women's speakers' bureau; Congressman Ames W. Good, of Iowa, and Maj. E. H. Williams.

The party went directly to a hotel, where Colonel Roosevelt joined his sister, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth. At the station, Colonel Roosevelt hurriedly explained that he had just come from the state of Maine. "We carried Malae by 5,000 four years ago," he said, "but we'll carry it by a whale of a vote this time, probably 25,000."

At the Republican committee headquarters, he made the following statement:

"The great issue of the campaign is the Wilson League of Nations. Like all good Americans I do not wish to see future wars. I know what war is and I have three little boys. There are the seeds of more future entanglements in that document than there in anything of its kind in history. Founded on injustice, in many instances and containing Article X, the league is a death trap."

"The Democrats are stating that the soldiers fought in France in order to establish the League of Nations. I think I am justified in saying that I know the soldiers better than those that are saying this. I want to tell these Democrats that our soldiers fought in France not for this league, but for one thing only—the United States. The men who gave their lives on the battlefield fell not for weak internationalism but with the thought that they were saving American liberty, and American ideals and American institutions."

FREAK APPLE.

Mr. James Ashley, of the Beda country, brought a freak apple, or rather a double apple to this office last Saturday. The fruit grew from one stem at the base of which there was only one core or heart but on cutting a portion of it away, two perfect hearts were shown. The apple bears two well developed blossom ends, not exactly on opposite sides but about three inches apart. It is not two apples grown to each other, but simply one apple of elongated shape, with two blossom ends.

Mrs. Julia Allen and daughter, Maggie, have taken the Hunger residence and will reside here during the school year. Mrs. Florence Allen and granddaughter, Sudie, have also returned here for the school year. They are occupying rooms with Miss Emmer Park.

VARDAMAN ROASTS PRESIDENT WILSON

Southern Ex-Senator Sees Administration As Mere Sham.

(Commercial Appeal.)

Hickory Flat, Miss., Aug. 30.—In a bitter attack on the Democratic administration, in which Woodrow Wilson was charged with almost everything from original sin to present insanity, James K. Vardaman today told an audience of Mississippi Democrats that not only would he be a candidate for the United States Senate again, but that he would shy his castor into the ring at the first opportunity.

"I am not now a candidate," he declared, "but I am going to be a candidate for the first legal vacancy. There are two vacancies now, but neither is legal."

The statement itself was not particularly surprising. The Democrats of Henton and Tippah and Marshall probably expected it. But it was of more than ordinary interest that the announcement should come sandwiched in a speech which throughout its two hours was made up of an indictment of a Democratic administration and a Democratic president that would have done credit to the most adept Republican orator that has yet undertaken to riddle the party and its record of eight years.

Mr. Vardaman insisted that he did not come to Hickory Flat in the interest of anybody, though Albert C. Anderson, the candidate for Congress from this district, was his personal and political friend. And he made no appeal for Mr. Anderson. But Mr. Anderson, who preceded him, was somewhat critical himself of the war record of the Democratic administration and particularly of the league of nations. Many of the arguments of both Mr. Anderson and Mr. Vardaman met and flowed along in the same channel. About the only difference was that Mr. Vardaman covered a wider field and went more into detail.

Raps President Continually.

He said himself that he intended to make his remarks scintillating. He talked about almost everything from negro domination to woman suffrage, but generally concluded with a fling at President Wilson.

"I wouldn't change a single vote I cast on any war measure," he declared. "Not one. And I wouldn't recall a single word I uttered. I have escaped the penitentiary, and I have not come under the espionage law. Theodore Roosevelt and I are about the only ones who didn't. These espionage laws are still in effect. In fact, all the war machinery is still going on, but your senators and representatives think more of the flattering vanity of the man in the White House than they do of taking the burden off of you."

"Wilson is crazier than I thought, and that is pretty crazy. Why, the latest thing is a bill he has had his attorney general send to the governors of all the states instructing them to have it enacted into law to prevent legislators from violating their pledges made in campaigns."

"We hear of a lot of abominated rot called altruism in which we are asked to take care of other nations. During the last few days I was in the Senate Woodrow Wilson asked for $100,000,000 to buy food for the Russians. They sent it. I didn't. At that very time we wanted the embargo taken off of cotton to Russia. A committee of southern senators called on the president. He said the embargo ought to be lifted, but France and England would not agree to it. It cost you millions of dollars."

Calls War Expenditures "Graft."

"Since 1914 there has never been such a carnival of graft and rascality in any country. Six months before we went into the war Jim Reed and I were pleading with the women in the western states to vote for Wilson and keep us out of war. I thought better of woman suffrage then because the women elected him. Then he plunged us into the war."

"The part the boys played in that war is splendid. The part the mothers and fathers and husbands played is splendid. But the part this government played is in some respects pusillanimous. Take, for instance, the aviation bill. They wasted a billion dollars and got only 213 flying coffins. You tollers have it to pay. Mr. Hughes made an investigation and recommended some prosecutions. But Mr. Wilson did not prosecute. He failed to popularize the war by letting every newspaper and every rascal get everything that could be got and charge it up to posterity."

"Why, the government bought about 360,000 head of horses, and then proceeded to order a copper branding iron for each two horses."

They bought 70,000 pounds of copper at 39 cents. It was found that only 50,000 pounds were needed. The surplus was sold to the same contractors at 11 cents. When the armistice came and the secretary of war was authorized to clear up war contracts he paid the contractors $40,000 and never branded a single horse.

"Then there is Hog Island. This was a scheme of Frank Vanderlip. Hiram Johnson and I raised a fuss about it and Wilson sent down a committee to investigate. They found that $30,000,000 had been stolen, but nothing was ever done about it. All of these things would not have happened if the senators and representatives on duty in Washington were thinking of you. You lost $485,000,000 alone in 1914 because Woodrow Wilson wouldn't stand by you on your cotton."

"On the floor of the Senate I pleaded with my colleagues not to put the negro in uniform. He is no good as a soldier. If he had been he would have destroyed us during reconstruction days. But Woodrow Wilson has ruined the negro of this country. Ultimately he will be colonized. Mexico will fall into our lap."

"I think the American flag will some day float from the Arctic circle to Panama, and I don't care if it does if we have race discrimination. I like the negro, but I do think he is an incubus on the moral, the intellectual and the economic life of the south."

Mr. Vardaman criticized the administration on the running of the railroads during the war, particularly on the return to private ownership. He insisted that the government didn't hesitate to pay them nearly a billion dollars, but declined to provide a decent bonus for the soldiers.

"You made sacrifices," he said. "Your boys made sacrifices, but the railroads didn't."

He insisted that he did not come to advise the people, but merely to talk to them.

"I am not here as a candidate," he declared, "nor in anybody's interest. Somebody said I was here for Albert Anderson. He is my personal and political friend. But I am not advising you how to vote. I am here in the interest of the people."

There is no doubt that it was a Vardaman audience. It could not be said that the audience agreed with him in his attacks on the administration or on the president, but his criticisms more than once aroused a cheer, and during the entire two hours he had splendid attention. He began speaking about 2 o'clock, following an introduction by Joe Owen, of New Albany, one of the defeated candidates in the first primary for Congress.

MINERS AMBUSHED IN MINGO COUNTY

Williamson, W. Va., Sept. 4.—A party of miners en route to work at Mohawk, McDowell County, just across the Mingo County line, were fired upon today by unidentified persons concealed in the mountains, according to reports received here tonight. As federal troops, sent into the coal strike region several days ago do not operate in McDowell County, Sheriff Daniels went to the scene late in the day for the purpose of making an investigation.

According to the reports received here, the miners who were attacked returned the fire, and the sheriff expressed the opinion that a number of the assailants had been wounded. Mohawk has been the scene of recent disorders.

The question of martial law for the Mingo County coal strike region will be settled here tomorrow, when Brig. Gen. Sturgis, United States army, will confer with Adj. Gen. Deweese, of Kentucky, and Adj. Gen. T. B. Davis, of West Virginia, on the subject. It was announced here tonight. General Sturgis arrived here today and the two adjutant generals are expected to appear early tomorrow morning. They will represent the governors of their respective states.

COX'S SUPPORT OF WILSON MEANS DEFEAT

Washington's Sharks Regard Visit
As Fatal

Washington, Aug. —More and more the impression prevails in the National Capital that when Governor Cox called upon President Wilson at the White House he handed Senator Harding a certificate of election.

The general belief prevails here that the country had already made up its mind to repudiate the President. His arrogance toward those differing with him in opinion, his specious promises of four years ago about keeping this country out of war, his idealistic and impracticable notions about Mexican and European affairs, his flitting with Socialism while flaying Bolshevism, the general incompetency and waste of his Administration, and his efforts to prevent any slightest protection of American interests in the League of Nations covenant, had completely estranged great masses of the people. The Democratic convention, it was thought in Washington, had put forward its most promising candidate in that he was supposed to be somewhat antagonistic to the Wilson ascendancy over the Democratic party and had not been nominated by the friends and followers of the President.

Hence the White House visit and the subsequent utterances of the two men came like a bombshell. Public opinion was thereby denied. Cox tied himself to a dead horse, politically speaking. In so many words he declared that he would uphold the position of the President in regard to the league and all other matters, that the President's fight was his fight. The President let it be known that the Cox attitude was eminently satisfactory to him.

Many Democratic members of the House and Senate were dismayed and dumfounded. Some among them said Cox could do no more in the beginning of the campaign than stand by the Democratic President and the Democratic Administration. These privately expressed the opinion, after he had made this initial move and made sure of a united party, that he would gradually break away from the absurdities and un-Americanism of the Chief Executive's position and assume a more independent attitude. Republican members of Congress laughed at this. They said Cox had buried himself beyond resurrection by his unnecessarily taking on the load of Woodrow Wilson, whom the country repudiated in 1918 and is ready to repudiate again.

But both Republican and Democratic members showed a disposition to wait. They would see what effect the visit had on the country. They would see what Cox said in his speech of acceptance. They found that the country reacted unfavorably to the President, as was to have been expected. And they found that the acceptance speech only accentuated the alliance between Wilson and Cox. They took the position and still hold to it that Cox is not fighting his own battle but that of Wilson, and that if Cox should be successful at the polls he would carry on the ideas and methods of Wilson and not of Cox.

Further credence to this view is given by the fact that Cox since his nomination has shown not the slightest originality or independence. He has not indicated that if elected he will stand out for something different and better than has already been done by President Wilson. He has not offered any suggestion of anything new for the bettering of the government. What he says, is this: "Whatever Wilson did was right. I could do no better. Hence I have accepted his position in toto. Furthermore, anyone who attacks him is doing exactly the same as if he kicked a wounded soldier in the stomach."

REFORM SCHOOL BOYS TO CLEAN UP CARLISLE

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 3.—At the instance of a delegation from Carlisle which came here and told State officials that the health of the community is threatened by filth accumulated in the streets, twenty-five boys from the House of Reform were ordered to Carlisle to help clean up debris following the recent flood. They will make the trip at the expense of Carlisle. Available labor at the stricken city is utilized in building bridges, nearly all of which were washed away.

KENTUCKY'S ROAD FUND $1,951,755

(Louisville Times)

Washington, Sept. 3.—Unless Federal action is taken during the current fiscal year concerning Federal aid in road building, the resulting uncertainty as to the future of this work will seriously handicap Kentucky and numerous other States and cause the entire road building program to suffer a serious setback. Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture, said today.

"The last apportionment of Federal funds to aid States in road construction under the existing Federal aid act, became available July 1," said Mr. MacDonald. "This is the largest apportionment yet certified under the Federal aid act, amounting to $100,000,000."

A deduction of $3,000,000 or 3 per cent of the funds will be made to provide for the expense of administering the Federal aid act by the Department of Agriculture. The balance of $97,000,000 will be divided among the States in proportion to their population, area and mileage of post roads. The Federal allotments to Kentucky on this basis amount to $1,951,755.43, of which $1,423,316.57 comes from the apportionment of the last installment of the 1919 Federal appropriation, while the remainder comes from the last apportionment of the 1916 Federal appropriation. If Kentucky absorbs this entire apportionment it will mean that more than $4,000,000 worth of Federal aid road construction will be undertaken in the Bluegrass State during the next two years.

"Under the law the States are required to enter into formal agreements with the Secretary of Agriculture for the construction upon which this money is to be used before July 1, 1922. Any money which is not taken up before that time will be re-apportioned among all the States in the same manner in which the original apportionments are made."

Officials of the Roads Bureau, however, point out that all previous apportionments have been taken up in the time allotted and in their opinion it is not likely that Kentucky and the other States will fail to absorb this last apportionment.

Fordson Tractors

Ohio county is falling far short of her duty in raising wheat. We should at least raise enough wheat to bread our inhabitants. It is true that occasionally we have a bad season, and a big fall off in acreage and yield is inevitable, but we must not get discouraged. We must double our energies, strengthen our soil and the general average will be satisfactory. Some claim a shortage in labor. That's true, but a FORDSON TRACTOR will easily supply this deficiency and make the growing of a good crop of wheat more certain.

Getting Shaky

Why Doctors Treat the Blood with Iron

When the doctor treats your blood, he gives you iron, for iron is said to be the best thing in all medicine to build up the blood. Sometimes he does this by regulating your diet—sometimes he administers iron in the form of pills or tonics. But always he is seeking a way to get more iron into your blood—he is trying to put back this great builder-of health and strength.

Acid Iron Mineral may be procured in either liquid or the more convenient tablet form at any drug store. It contains no alcohol or injurious drugs and will not blacken the teeth. It has been especially noted that pale, puny children, weak, run-down persons and those enfeebled by age show improvement and exhibit increased strength almost immediately after starting treatment.

Quick Improvement from New Form of Iron

The new way to restore iron to the blood—the surest and most dependable of all methods—is through the use of Acid Iron Mineral. This is a natural form of soluble iron, found

A PRESERVING SON-IN-LAW

A New Yorker visiting a New England village one day observed from the windows of his hotel an unusual commotion in the street.

"May I ask what is going on?" asked the New Yorker of the owner.

"We're celebrating the birthday of the oldest inhabitant, sir," said the landlord. "She's an even hundred to-day."

"And tell me, who is that sad-faced little man walking by the old lady's side?"

"That, sir, is her son-in-law. He's been keeping up her life insurance for the last thirty years."

HOUSE REPUBLICANS EFFECT BIG SAVING

Provide For Centralization Of Money Strings In One Bag

Washington, Sept.—In spite of the veto by the President of the budget bill at the close of the last session of Congress, the House has provided for a change in its own rules which will effect a coordination in the system of making expenditures which will have a salutary effect in bringing about governmental economy.

A resolution adopted by the Republican House makes three important changes, as follows:

It centers in one Committee on Appropriations, composed of thirty-five members, the authority to report all appropriations, and takes from the Committee on Agriculture, Committee on Foreign Affairs, Committee on Indian Affairs, Committee on Military Affairs, Committee on Naval Affairs, Committee on Post Office and Post Roads, and the Rivers and Harbors Committee, the authority now vested in those committees to report appropriations.

It requires that any Senate amendment to a general appropriation bill originating in the House shall be first submitted to the House for a separate vote before such amendment be agreed to by the managers on the part of the House.

It permits the raising of a point of order at any time on any appropriation item carried in any bill or joint resolution reported by any committee not having jurisdiction to report appropriations.

It is at once apparent that the principal change in the rules of the House is the one centering all appropriations in a single committee. This change was strongly urged by practically every person who appeared before the committee as being a very important and necessary step, if in the future appropriations are to be made with intelligence and economy.

It was the intention of the framers of the Constitution that Congress, and Congress alone, should be responsible for appropriations of public money. The Constitution provides:

No money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law, and a regular statement of the accounts on the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time. (Art. 1, sec. 9 par. 7.)

Under this plain mandate of the fundamental law of the land, Congress should be satisfied with the adoption of nothing short of the very best plan that can be devised for making appropriations out of the Treasury of the United States. The rules of the House governing its procedure in this respect have been changed from time to time.

The Committee on Ways and Means of the House was created as a select committee in 1789 with jurisdiction to report revenue, appropriation, and banking currency measures. It was made a standing committee in 1802 and continued with that jurisdiction until 1865, or 76 years, therefore, that committee had jurisdiction over all revenue, appropriation, and banking and currency legislation.

All appropriations in the beginning were reported in one bill. The number of the regular annual appropriation bills gradually increased until by 1850 it had reached the present number of thirteen regular appropriation bills and one or more deficiency appropriation bills.

The jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means was divided in 1865. Up to that time, as has been stated, it had control over all revenue, appropriation, and banking and currency bills. In 1865 a Committee on Appropriations and a Committee on Banking and Currency was created. To the Committee on Appropriations was given jurisdiction to report the general appropriation bills and to the Committee on Banking and Currency, and currency legislation.

COOLNESS OF MEN SAVED CASUALTIES

New York, Sept. 4.—Frederick W. Whitehead, chief machinist mate of the submarine S-5, gave an account in his home in Brooklyn tonight of the experience of his shipmates during the hours they were trapped beneath the sea. He got permission from his commanding officer to visit his wife, a war bride who is in delicate health, and was transferred to the destroyer McDonough, bound for New York, instead of going to Philadelphia in the Biddle with the rest of the crew.

After describing preliminaries to what he termed "the last dive called for in the test," he said:

"We hit bottom and rested easily. The captain and the men had a conference when we started the air salvage system of work. This was 2,300 pounds of compressed air pressure and we tried to blow the water out of the tank, but the added water was too much and we could not rise. The torpedo room was completely flooded. We closed the water tank door from the torpedo room into the battery room, but still there was from two to three feet of water in each room. We were also unsuccessful in trying to blow the water out of the torpedo room. After blowing all of the oil out of the fuel tank we were still too heavy to rise.

"The captain," he continued, "then figured out that our boat was 231 feet long and the water was but 160 feet deep, and that by standing the boat on her nose, the stern would project thru the water. To do this, we had to let the water from other compartments run into the storage room, where we knew it would form a deadly chlorine gas. But there was nothing else to do.

"We blew out this water, but as it rushed past and the stern began to rise, we were all swept along with it. Several of the men sustained injuries. The salt water on the battery plates caused the formation of chlorine gas and the men began choking. We had only six gas masks between us; I had none.

"The captain worked his way aft a speaking tube. We finally had to quit our posts as we were choking with the gas. With difficulty we got into the next compartment, but had to return to open a valve so that we could get air. The lights then went out.

"Finally we got into the tiller room and after five hours' work, managed to drill a small hole thru the steel plates. We were then about twenty-five feet above the water. We put some old rags on the fuel oil pipe and pushed it thru one of these holes as a signal, to a steamer we saw passing about five miles away.

"But she evidently did not see us and passed us by.

"An hour later the Albatross came along and luckily for us she was off her route thru being partially disabled. She saw us and sent a boat to help us. After getting a cable around us, two crews from the boat started to drill from the outside. We kept on working on inside, but the air was so foul we could work only for ten minutes at a time and fall back exhausted. Finally a hole was made large enough to put a hose thru and air was pumped into us.

"We rigged up a funnel and thru this we received the first water we had had in twenty hours. After being down thirty-five hours a plate was cut thru large enough to be carried out."

Whitehead said all the officers and crew ate for the entire time they were submerged was canned tomatoes, corned beef and string beans, as the compartment in which other food was stored was flooded. The supply of drinking water for all on board during the period of distress was two buckets full. Whitehead explained there was no danger from possible explosion of the eight torpedoes on board, because the electric batteries were dampened by the water that rushed into the torpedo compartment.

WILSON'S INSTRUCTIONS TO COX

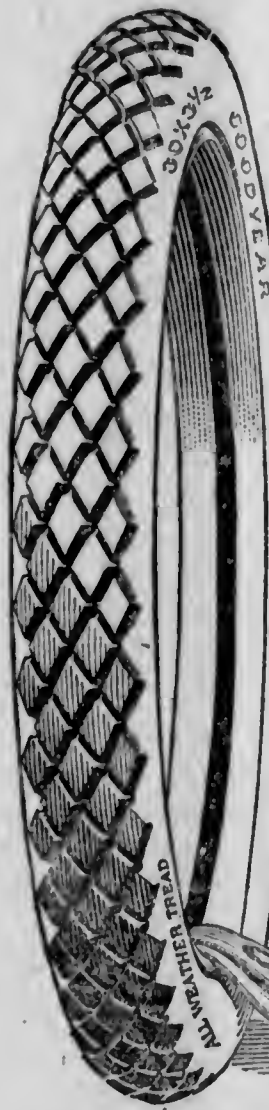

Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue; but if you mouth it, as many of your players do, I had as lief the town-crier spoke my lines. Nor do not saw the air too much with your hands, thus; but use all gently; for in the very torrent, tempest, and as I may say the whirlwind of passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance that may give it smoothness. —Hamlet. GET RID OF HER TROUBLES AT 75

"Tanlac is Certainly a Fine Medicine For Elderly People," She Says

Among the many Kentucky people who have recently testified to the powers of Tanlac, is Mrs. Nannie Chappell, residing at 3724 Old Third Street, Louisville, who in relating her experience said:

"I am now seventy-five years of age, but I doubt if there are many women that old who feel any better than I do since taking Tanlac. Why, during all the years of my life I have never seen or heard of a medicine to equal it, for a few bottles have relieved me of a case of rheumatism, nervousness and indigestion that had troubled me for twenty-three years. Sometimes my lower limbs hurt me so bad I couldn't walk and at times my arms pained me so I couldn't raise my hands to comb my hair. I had several attacks every year and while they were on me I could neither get up or down without help. Many a time I got so nervous I would shake like a leaf and just dreaded to see night come, for it was impossible for me to sleep. My appetite left me, too, and everything I ate disagreed with me.

"Finally I got so bad off with this rheumatism that I couldn't stay on my feet any longer. While I was down in bed my son, who is a passenger engineer on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, came to see me and said, 'Mother you remember how I suffered so long with stomach trouble and could hardly eat at all, and lost weight and thought I would have to quit work? Well, you see me now weighing two hundred and fifteen pounds, and in such a good condition that I can eat pork or anything else I want and my health just perfect. Tanlac did this for me and I'm going to get you a bottle.' So he did, and almost as soon as I began taking it I felt better. In a few days I had a good appetite and was able to get out of bed. I have taken three bottles of Tanlac now and am feeling like a different person. Every sign of the rheumatism is gone and I am not only able to sleep soundly every night but I usually take a nap during the day. Tanlac is certainly a fine medicine for old people and I will gladly tell anyone personally just what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Hartford by Dr. L. B. Bean, in Horse Braach by Olaton Drug Co., in Rockport by James Browning, in Cromwell by Wallace & Porter, in Beaver Dam by R. T. Taylor, Jr., in Madison by S. J. Tichenor.—Advertisement.

COULDN'T REMEMBER SWEETHEART'S NAME

Coalton, Okla., Sept. 4.—Mnking errors in his bride-to-be's first name proved no bar to J. C. Coughlin, 30, obtaining the 'girl of his choice.'

After having obtained six marriage licenses only to find that his memory had played him a trick each time, Coughlin wrote the name on a piece of paper, pinned it to his coat lapel and secured "life sentence" certificate lucky 7.

The family upon which Coughlin's affections centered—Hurst by name—included three daughters. His trouble was that he failed to remember whether it was Ethel, Fannie or Mabel when he arrived at the county judge's office on the six successive occasions.

Swellings of the flesh caused by inflammation, cold, fractures of the bone, toothache, neuralgia or rheumatism can be relieved by applying Ballard's Snow Liniment. It should be well rubbed in over the part affected. Its great healing and penetrating power eases the pain, reduces swelling and restores natural conditions. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Ohio County Drug Co.

H. K. Thurman, a Tennessee soldier, who died in action overseas, named his 13-year-old stallion, Knipow, the beneficiary in the $10,000 war insurance policy he carried. Knipow is now a favorite mount of the state guard at Buffalo, N. Y.

AVERS G. O. P. WILL GAIN 2 SENATORS

Washington, Sept. 4.—Senator Miles Polindexter, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Committee, issued a statement today upon his return to Washington from a Western tour, declaring that the Republican majority after the November election would be certainly increased by two. "Excellent prospects," he added, existed for its increase by a total of seven.

Republican candidates for senator in Idaho and Colorado he predicted would win, while in Arizona, California, Nevada, Oregon and Kentucky the committee also expected success.

"The people realize that the election of a senator in any one state may determine possibly the control of the Senate," Senator Polindexter said, "and they are so indignant at the conduct of the present administration, whose policies Governor Cox has pledged himself to follow, that there will be no doubt about the return of a Republican Senate."

"I have made a very careful examination of conditions in all of the states where the senatorial election is at all uncertain, and upon this I feel satisfied that the Republicans will retain all of the states they now hold and gain several from the Democrats."

PRESIDENT PARDONS KENTUCKY HORSEMAN

Covington, Ky., Sept. 4.—Peter Wimmer, 70, former Louisville turfman, who was convicted in the United States District Court here in 1913, on the charge of violating the espionage law, has been pardoned by President Wilson. United States Marshal Henry Cox received a telegram from the office of Attorney General Palmer advising that the pardon had been granted.

Wimmer was taken into custody at the Latonia race track where he had been employed as watchman, following charges that he had made remarks alleged to have been favorable to Germany. Wimmer admitted he had made the remarks but said they were not intended in the manner in which they were interpreted.

He was sentenced to six months in jail and was fined $500. No part of the sentence was served nor the fine paid, as the case was appealed. The higher court affirmed the lower court.

The court officials did not comment on the pardon, nor did they oppose it strenuously.

In former years Wimmer was a trained and owner of race horses both in the United States and Europe.

Just What She Needed.

"I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets some time ago and they proved to be just what I needed," writes Mrs. Volta Bankson, Chillicothe, Mo. "They not only relieved me of indigestion but toned up my liver and rid me of backache and dizziness that I had been subject to for some time. They did me a world of good and I will always speak a good word for them."

Do keepers of jails and prisons get pay for dictating inmates when on hunger strikes?

Col. W. J. Bryan avers that he is still a Democrat, but not supporting Cox, whom he regards as "wet."

Governor Cox continues to slop the slush fund stuff over from the tail-end of trains without getting anybody's feet wet other than "Jemes."

Are the Election Officers to get the powder puffs, paint daubing devices, hand bags, and mirrors left in the polling places this coming November 2?

We are beginning to believe that the Courier-Journal is really against Harding, but it is generally difficult to tell, from its editorials whom it is for, for President. It keeps forever and incessantly belittling Senator Harding, just as Cox keeps up his chatter, in spite of lack of proof, that the Republicans are to buy the Presidency, perpetuate the Senate Oligarchy and thereby defeat Wilson's "perfect peace perpetuating policy pointedly paragraphed in Article X."

Mr. White, Democratic National Chairman, while being questioned by the Committee investigating the $15-000,000 campaign charge frankly admitted that he had recently thereto, held a conference with Cox, but that he knew absolutely nothing about the truthfulness of the charge, had no figures etc., but that he believed that it was true, simply because Cox said so. It does look as though that ought to settle the whole matter with the other voters in the Country.
Cox also said that he did not want the support of any "wet" man, and if we were to invite only the people of this vicinity who believed the latter statement to be true, into our office to be made a present of a five dollar William, not even a penny would be claimed.

Out in the far Northwest where so much trouble has occurred with the lawless, where I. W. W. literature was thrown on the tail end of the Jim Cox special, he, Cox, said in one speech, "There are some people in this country who believe that when radicalism asserts itself they should lay the hand of force upon it, the hand of oppression. My creed is entirely different. It is to cultivate the principles and practices of good government." Study the words, the location, the circumstances causing the utterance and draw your own conclusion. It was out in this far western country you know, where the I. W.
W.'s fired on a lot of American Legion and returned Soldier boys, marching in a parade and celebration.

The creed of good government is always in order but the bait and sop he threw to those in opposition to our government just about matches his charge of the $15,000,000 attempt of the Republicans to purchase the Democratic party.

The League of Nations Proponents, Wilson, Cox and the others, claim that Article X is the heart of the whole structure, yet they tell us that it does not abridge the rights of Congress in saying when or whether the United States shall or shall not go to war. And as a matter of course, if America has the legal and moral right to make her choice in the matter other Nations most assuredly have the same privilege. If it be true then, that there is nothing compulsory in the much debated, fought for and against Article, it follows that it is simply a dead heart or one that will cease to function and liable to pollute the whole system. Opponents of the League and especially Article X, believing that treaties when rat-fied, supersede all other law (on questions covered) of the individual Governments ratifying, strenuously object because it leaves our destiny in the hands of foreign powers, overrides the American Congress and the wishes of the people themselves, and that we would be doubly bound to send our boys to war whenever and wherever it might be willed upon us by the representatives of these foreign powers gathered in a court of last and final resort. We say doubly bound because if the debatable article means anything or is worth anything, it is supreme to every other law of every land a party thereto, and, added to that is the great moral obligation, the pledge to do the things enumerated in said article. Republicans and others opposing, do so because of the binding and perhaps ruinous obligations assumed. Those who favor the thing say that it does not bind us to war, at the dictation of foreign powers through their decisions, whether we assent or not. Those who favor the League and Wilson say that those opposing are a mere oligarchy, doing it through hatred and for purely partisan purposes. If it does not bind us in war and otherwise, pray, tell us of what use it can be? If as you argue, there is no virtue in it, so far as driving us to war, just remove the doubt, cut it out, amend it, or do something that we may all be certain and agreed as to the meaning thereof.

MYRTLE GRAHAM.

We the members of W. M. U., of Narrows Baptist Church, do bow our heads in humble submission to the will of the Lord, who doeth all things well and who saw fit to call from our union to a more perfect one, our dear, departed sister, Myrtle V. Graham, who passed away June 13th, 1920.

Myrtle, as she was called by all who knew her, was elected President at the organization of our union and held that place for some time and did much good for the work as will be remembered by all present members and who in the past year of her life often expressed her desire to remain a member of said union as long as she lived, though deprived of the privilege of attending its meetings.
May we all strive to so live that we can say as she often said during her last illness "I am ready and willing to go."

Mrs. J. W. Thomas died at her home near Narrows, Saturday, Sep-

Mrs. Thomas was originally Miss was a faithful member until death.

STRAY STREAKS

(By Fluke McFluke.)

What's become of the Magnetic, or other mysterious healer, whom people were running over each other to get to. Have all been made whole again?

J. I. Goodman, who advertised in this column for a dozen carrier pig-cons, says he don't want any more of the little birds, as he has come to the conclusion that he will substitute ostriches for his work, they being able to carry so much more.

Notwithstanding the fact that it rained both Saturday and Sunday, and was clear Monday, Hartford won a ball game each day; in other words three in a row. We make this statement by way of apology for what we have heretofore and herein said with reference to the home team and rainy days.

This shop gave a half holiday Monday, but Duke, the foreman, says he don't want no more. He came into the office Tuesday A. M., with his hands all skinned and puffed up, looking about like a pair of hams out of a 120 pound pig. When we asked him what he had been tied up with he said Miss Duke had him repairing a kitchen range and a number of other such things on the holiday end of his labor day, and he would be ever-so-much obliged if we would just cut out holidays in the future.

We discovered a good method Sunday, for getting down to the ball games without being caught by those sitting on front porches, from Uncle Tommy Bean's and up. Directions:
(But keep it quiet) Drive out of town via S. T. Barnett's; thence through Rose Dale addition to the farther-most Street; thence to the right to the Centertown road; thence to the ball grounds, in perfect safety. On returning, drive the same way, excep reverse the calls. And if you wish to do it correctly drive a pony, as our friend and his wife who took this cir-cuitous and perfectly safe course, drove a pony Sunday, and no one, barring a few who saw them, will ever know they were there.

When we are in the midst of as serious thought as we are able to wade, which is always very shallow, we certainly are much delighted, in fact, overjoyed, to have some professional loafer slide into the office, perambulate into our so-called private apartment and with deliberation park himself upon the desk beside our oliver, then with muffled wide open, throw the clutch into high gear and turn his dadgummed chatterbox loose at a break-neck speed.
If some friend will be kind enough to bring us a seasoned dogwood club labeled and guaranteed as a sure pest eradicator, we will put his name in the paper two weeks straight.

FARM DEPARTMENT.

Prevent the Hessian Fly.

Probably no other insect causes more damage to the wheat crop of the United States than the Hessian fly and there is no such thing as fly-proof wheat. The treatment of the Hessian fly must be preventative for after it gets in there is no help and the thing to do is to delay the planting of wheat until the main body of the fly emerges in the fall. The time of planting wheat varies from October 5 to October 20 in Kentucky according to the location. In the Blue Grass section the date is October 5 and in the Western part of the State it is the 20th. The flies may be expected to appear earlier this year because of the many rains and it will probably appear about September 1st, as the moisture serves to liberate the fly. The Department of Entomology, of the College of Agriculture, advises that it will be necessary for the farmers everywhere to sow wheat this year at the same time as usual. Circular No. 4, at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, prepared on the Hessian fly is available for wheat growers.

Exposure to weather often causes greater destruction to farm implements than using them. Avoid this loss by storing all machinery and tools properly under shelter before winter sets in.

Aid Removes Stain on Zinc.

Zinc darkens with use, but may be brightened by the use of scourers. Zinc on floors, under stoves, and in like places, should be scoured with bath-brick and kerosene, washed and rinsed with water, and wiped dry. Zinc on tables, or wherever likely to come in contact with food, should be scoured with bath-brick and water. Acid, as in vinegar or lemon juice, may be used to remove stains on zinc, but should be thoroughly washed off; otherwise the zinc will tarnish again very soon.

How To Treat Ivy Poisoning

In the early stages of ivy poisoning, remedies having a fatty or oily base, such as ointments, should not be used, as the grease or oil tends to dissolve and spread the poison, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Instead they advise simple remedies such as local applications of solutions of cooking soda or of Epsom salt, one or two heaping teaspoons to a cup of water. Fluid extract of grindelia, diluted with 4 to 8 parts of water, is often used.

Solutions of this kind may be applied with light bandages, of clean cloths, which should be kept moist, and should be changed and discarded frequently to avoid infection. During the night, or when moist applications can not be used, the poisoned surfaces should be carefully cleaned and dried and left exposed to the air rather than tightly bandaged. In the later stage, after the toxic material has exhausted itself, zinc-oxide ointment and similar mild antiseptic and astringent applications hasten healing.

These are a few of the helpful hints concerning ivy poisoning contained in Farmers' Bulletin 1166, which tells also how to distinguish between poison ivy and poison sumac. The bulletin is illustrated with pictures of the two plants, which are often confused.

How To Make Waffles Crisp And Appetizing.

2 cups sifted flour.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
2 teaspoons sugar, if desired.
2 eggs.
1 tablespoon shortening, (melted).
1 cup milk (or more.)
Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar. Beat the eggs until light, separating whites and yolks if desired. To the beaten eggs (or yolks) add the shortening and part of the milk, and mix this with the dry materials. Beat thoroughly and add enough more milk (or water) to make a smooth batter about the consistency of thick cream. If the whites were beaten separately, fold them in last.

The waffle irons should be thoroughly clean and smooth. Heat both sides thoroughly and grease with a brush or swab dipped in liquid fat or rub the iron with a piece of fat bacon rind. Place a spoonful of batter in each compartment of the grid, near the center, close the irons and the batter will fill the compartments. Bake on one side until the edges seem to be browning, then turn the iron and bake the other side until delicately brown.

New Wheat Widely Grown.

Deep interest in the success of Kanred wheat reported from Kansas is being shown by specialists of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture.

According to reports this year's acreage of Kanred is estimated by Kansas authorities to have been about 500,000 acres. Of this total area 15,000 to 20,000 acres, grown by selected farmers, have been carefully inspected in the field by representatives of the Kansas Agricultural College and certified as furnishing sources of seed of high quality and purity.

Kanred is a variety of hard red winter wheat developed by the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station. It was obtained by selection from the Crimean variety of hard red winter wheat introduced from Russia by the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Federal Department of Agriculture and widely grown in Kansas and adjacent States.

It was developed by the Kansas scientists with special reference to conditions there and has proved to be a better yielder by 3 to 5 bushels to the acre compared with other hard red winter wheats. Its better yield is due in part to greater resistance to winterkilling and to rust and in part to its slightly earlier ripening, say specialists of the department.

A rank growth of weeds becomes an asset when plowed under before they make seed.

Surgeons agree that in cases of cuts, burns, bruises and wounds the first treatment is most important. When an efficient antiseptic is applied promptly, there is no danger of infection and the wound begins to heal at once. For use on man or beast, Borozone is the Ideal Antiseptic and Healing Agent. Buy it now and be ready for an emergency. Price 25c, 50c, $1.00 and $1.50. Sold by Ohio County Drug Co.

SODA LAKE.

In the midst of a barren and waterless waste in British East Africa is what appears to be a lake covered with a coating of snow partially thawed, and then frozen again. So complete is the deception that a stranger for a moment fails to realize the impossibility of there being snow and ice in the midst of heat that is almost intolerable. It is in reality a practically inexhaustible deposit of soda, but bears such striking resemblance to a sheet of frozen water that it has been given the name of Lake Magadi.

Until recent years few people knew of its existence but a railway to the coast for the transportation of the soda is now completed, opening a way to this curious natural phenomenon.

To traverse this district in the dry season is to have one's feet burned thru one's shoes, and the soda spikes will pierce any except the thickest soles. After the rains there is a layer of water over the greatest part of the surface, which turns a beautiful shade of pink, and by moonlight the scene is weirdly beautiful.

The lake contains millions of tons of soda deposits and both surface and underground streams of saturated soda liquid feed it. The present supply is enormous, and as fast as it is removed a new surface, formed from the mother liquid beneath, replaces it. Natives have collected soda from the same spot year after year without making the slightest difference, apparently, in the abundance of the supply.

If your child is pale and sickly, picks at the nose, starts in the sleep and grinds the teeth while sleeping, it is a sure sign of worms. A remedy for these parasites will be found in WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE. It not only clears out the worms, but it restores health and cheerfulness. Price 30c per bottle. Sold by Ohio County Drug Co.

LEVEE SCENES COME BACK IN MEMPHIS

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 4.—After thirty years, the scenes along the levee are beginning to resemble those of the Civil War period—when the Mississippi River was a great artery of passenger and freight commerce. Regular steamship service between Cincinnati and New Orleans via Memphis, will be started next month. Drastic freight rate increases have forced a return to the river.

GYPSIES FORCED TO MOVE

Several hundred Rumanian gypsies have started moving from the outskirts of Baltimore to a more northern line on account of the Maryland law that requires them to pay a $1,000 "family fee" or leave the state. They refused to either pay the fee or move into houses, and long trains of wagons, flivvers and marching gypsies clad in brilliant colors started on their exodus.

HERBINE is the medicine that cures biliousness, malaria and constipation. The first dose makes you feel better, a few additional doses cures completely. Price 60c. Sold by Ohio County Drug Co.

The volume of the salt in the ocean according to the United States Geological Survey, is enough to cover the entire surface of the United States to a depth of 8,500 feet.

Colds & Headache

"For years we have used Black-Draught in our family, and I have never found any medicine that could take its place," writes Mr. H. A. Stacy, of Bradyville, Tenn. Mr. Stacy, who is a Rutherford County farmer, recommends Black-Draught as a medicine that should be kept in every household for use in the prompt treatment of many little ills to prevent them from developing into serious troubles.

THE DRAUGHT'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

"It touches the liver, and does the work," Mr. Stacy declared. "It is one of the best medicines I ever saw for a cold and headache. I don't know what we would do in our family if it wasn't for Black-Draught. It has saved us many dollars. I know it is a reliable and splendid medicine to keep in the house. I recommend Black-Draught highly and am never without it."

KY. WAGON MINES FILING PROTEST

Corbin, Ky., Sept. 4.—Wagon mine operators of the Eleventh Congressional District met here for a conference today and decided to send a committee to Washington September 8 to protest the Interstate Commerce Commission's orders No. 9 and 11 restricting the use of open-top cars to coal mines not equipped with modern loading facilities. The operators said they represented 1,500 wagon mines in the district, a capital investment of approximately $7,000,000, employ 15,000 workers and have a daily output of 75,000 tons of coal. If the orders are enforced it was said, at least 10,000 men will be thrown out of employment, production materially cut down and that the consequent scarcity of coal would send prices skyward.

The conference adopted resolutions calling upon the Interstate Commerce Commission to set aside the orders complained of, not to discriminate against small mines and to furnish a just quota of cars not only in Eastern Kentucky fields, but to the 3,500 wagon mines now doing business in the United States. All operators, it is contended, should be placed on an equal footing in the allotment of cars.

It was emphatically denied that there is undue delay in loading or that wagon mines are guilty of the practice of hogging up cars. Use of boxcar equipment as provided in the order makes coal hard to market, the operators assert. The price the coal brings is less than when shipped in open-top cars.

Another angle on the controversy is that banks financing the wagon mines will be hard hit if the order holds.

It is further pointed out that lumber concerns in the district are furnished coal cars on which to load lumber, and this alleged discrimination will be complained of by the committee.

Members of the committee named to go to Washington were J. S. Chapell, S. H. Kash, J. T. Gray and H. F. Johnson.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

THE METHODS OF PROFITEERING

Raising the prices of goods on account of the "increased freight rates" is a process that doesn't hold water. According to the statement of one of the big railroad companies, flour shipped in earload lots from Minneapolis to Philadelphia on which the forty per cent increase is paid, will amount to 33 cents a barrel of 200 pounds. On a 24-pound sack of flour this will be just a little less than four cents. The increased freight on a pair of shoes shipped from Boston to Philadelphia would amount to six miles, on a crate of thirty dozen eggs from Chicago to Philadelphia, twenty cents, or three-fourths of a cent per dozen; on a bushel of potatoes from Exmore, Virginia, to Philadelphia, 5.5 cents. These representative instances indicate that the dealers who attempt to raise prices on account of the "increased freight" are pretty apt to be found doing an unartistic piece of profiteering.

KY. METHODISTS IN CELEBRATION

Church History In State Reviewed At Centennial Meeting In Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 3.—Today noted the largest attendance of the week of the Kentucky conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which celebrated the centennial of its establishment with addresses by Dr. W. E. Arnold of Louisville, Dr. J. L. Clark of Mt. Sterling and Dr. H. C. Morrison, of Asbury College. The celebration followed the usual routine session of the conference this morning and continued through the afternoon.

Doctor Arnold spoke on "Beginnings of Methodism in Kentucky" telling of the first conference held in the State 130 years ago and the first Methodist church erected in the State between Danville and Perryville. He told of the establishment of the "Limestone Circuit" on which Maysville was one of the points and of the first Kentucky conference held at the Masterson home, five miles out of Lexington on the Winchester Pike.

Doctor Clark spoke of the founding of Methodism in Kentucky by Francis Clark in 1783 in discussing "The Kentucky Conference's Contribution to Methodism." He told of the appointment of the first missionaries to Kentucky by Bishop Asbury in 1786 and of the organization and development of the church as the State grew in population and importance. Doctor Clark reviewed the schism in the church and its colleges over the questions of the slavery agitation and the taking over of Antislavery by the conference of 1842 to 1848. He also reviewed the history of Kentucky Wesleyan College, founded at Millersburg in 1866 and moved to Winchester in 1880.

Doctor Clark reviewed a long list of Methodists who had gone from Kentucky to become leaders in other States of the Union and to Christian lands abroad. He recalled at length the services of the Methodist women of the conference in missionary and other fields of church work and paid special tribute to Miss Belle Bennett of Richmond, president of the Woman's Missionary Society.

At the morning business session the Rev. E. L. Southgate of Georgetown was recommended for superannuation. The characters of the ministers of the Covington district were passed. S. T. Pritch was appointed a student to Drew Seminary, George W. Young as Anti-Saloon League lecturer, Dr. H. C. Morrison as president, and John Paul as dean of Asbury College and C. C. Fisher as president of Millersburg Female College.

The Rev. W. J. Harris, of Hinton and the Rev. D. E. Bedinger, of Erlanger, applied for superannuation. Clarence Wilson and Clarence Sharrow were admitted to the conference on trial.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Governor Cox and his running mate Franklin D. Roosevelt, are working themselves up to impassioned heights of oratory upon the subject of how the predatory Wall Street interests are preparing to buy the presidency for the Republican party and upset the federal reserve bank act. In view of this contention the New York Evening Post's announcement of "cordial support" of the Democratic ticket must be more than an embarrassment to Governor Cox. The Post is owned by Thomas W. Lamont, of the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company. J. P. Morgan and Company are probably the chief of our international bankers. They favor Cox because Cox favors the Wilson league, and the Wilson league is an international proposition which promises profit to them. If J. P. Morgan and Company are not representative of Wall Street, we know of no firm which is. And yet Cox has the support of the firm's medium of publicity and public influence. We doubt that he will be able to divert attention from this fact by verbal attacks upon Wall Street and the reported $15,000,000 or $30,000,000 Republican campaign fund.

In the first place, the charges by Cox and Roosevelt that the Republicans are planning to buy the presidency are merely charges. Will H. Hays has pointed out that Roosevelt's tale of a $20,000,000 fund was admittedly based upon no better evidence than "an item" he had "read in a newspaper." He has pointed out that Cox's charge on the subject is equally without proof.

The idea of purchase of the presidency is so repulsive that it makes a ready weapon, and both Cox and Roosevelt are using it without substantiation. There can be no doubt that if they had proofs they would not hesitate to use them. They have none. On the contrary, the Republican campaign contributions are more decentralized than ever before, with a limit of $1,000 for each contributor. Plans for this decentralization of giving were made more than a year ago.

It is a popular fallacy to believe that all money spent in a campaign is slush money. Advertising, speaker's expenses, postage, campaign literature, office expenses, and a score of other things which cost great sums of money in a national campaign are all legitimate. Money for these uses goes to inform, not to corrupt, the voter. Without its expenditure there could be no intelligent decision by the masses of voters.

Any attempt to impress voters with an idea that all campaign expenditures are corrupt is itself corrupt. If campaign publicity and attendant outlay means corruption, what does the use of the vast organization which is now maintained by Democratic federal patronage mean? Does any one doubt that there is a Democratic postmaster or other federal job holder in the United States, who is not using both his time and his position to their limit to support the Democratic ticket?

They are paid by the Government, not from a campaign fund, but they are paid, nevertheless. And they hope for more pay for four years to come if they can return a Democratic administration. If Governor Cox wishes to make the issue a moral one, why does he overlook this feature?

OPINIONS ON WOMEN

When the women get into politics, the selection of a favorite daughter will be a sort of beauty contest.—Toledo News-Record.

When a man has a birthday he sometimes takes a day off, but when a woman has a birthday she generally takes a year off.—Columbia Record.

As soon as the women learn to vote here's hoping they'll teach the men.—Nashville Tennessean.

A woman will marry a man to reform him, but a bank never hires one with a similar object in view.—Toledo Blade.

The Chicago deputy commissioner of public works says the girls must consult their consciences with regard to the costumes they wear at the municipal bathing beach. The commissioner will find a lot of malodors with South Sea Island consciences.—Detroit Free Press.

Frank—When you proposed to her I suppose she said: "This is so sudden?"

Ernest—No, she was honest and said: "This suspense has been terrible."

MAN HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH THIS BANK

Clarksville, Tenn., Sept. 3.—For many years Tennessee's biggest dark tobacco market, Clarksville, has taken on how glorious, and now the home of the first woman's bank to be organized in America, and possibly in the world.

Mrs. F. J. Runyon, wife of a prominent physician, is president of the bank, which is incorporated as "The First Woman's Bank in Tennessee." Women do all the work, and a Board of Woman Directors, on which not a "Miss" appears, guides the destiny of the institution. Mrs. Matt Lyle, wife of the County Attorney, is cashier.

Mrs. Runyon, originator of the woman bank idea, although she modestly claims the suggestion was given her by a man, has been prominent in social life of Clarksville for years. She was instrumental in getting for Clarksville a Juvenile Court, a hospital and a woman's building. During the war she was chairman of the Montgomery County Red Cross, and still holds that position.

The First Woman's Bank specializes in loans for women, but men are not barred from the use of its capital.

LABOR FEDERATION ASSISTED FARMERS

Being told that it would take $20,000,000 to harvest the wheat crop in the Northwest, and that if labor did not co-operate the farmers would have to go to the capitalists of Wall Street, the Chicago Federation of Labor voted to deposit its funds in the Non-partisan League bank of Minneapolis, N. D., and recommended that all other unions take similar action.

GEOGRAPHICAL PARAGRAPHS

Hyndman Peak is the only named mountain in Idaho that rises above 12,000 feet. It stands near the Blaine-Custer county line and has a height of 12,078 feet. There are, however, several unnamed peaks near Hyndman Peak whose elevations are greater than 12,000 feet, as shown by the contours on the Halley topographic map, published by the United States Geological Survey.

The total annual rainfall upon all the land of the globe amounts to 29,347 cubic miles, according to the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, and of this quantity 6,524 cubic miles drains off through rivers to the sea. A cubic mile of river water weighs about 4,205,500,000 tons and carries in solution an average of about 420,000 tons of foreign matter. In all, about 2,735,000,000 tons of solid matter is thus carried annually to the ocean.

North America ranks third among the continents in the heights of mountains. Asia has Mount Everest, of the Himalayas, which stands 29,002 feet above sea level, and South America has Mount Aconcagua, of the Andean system, which is 23,080 feet high. North America comes next with Mount McKinley, in Alaska, 20,300 feet, according to the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, and Africa is fourth with Kibo Peak, 19,320 feet. Mont Blanc, Europe's highest mountain, is 15,782 feet high, which is more than a thousand feet higher than any mountain in the United States outside of Alaska.

As early as the sixteenth century the Appalachian Mountains were known to contain deposits of gold, according to the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior. When the Spanish explorers came to southeastern North America the Indians showed them some rich nuggets and ornaments of gold that had been mined in the Southern Appalachian region. In the seventeenth century the Spaniards mined for gold in Georgia. During the eighteenth century very little gold mining was done anywhere in the Appalachians, although some writers have supposed that gold was found in North Carolina before the Revolutionary war.

Just at the close of the eighteenth century placer gold was discovered in Cabarrus County, N. C., and considerable prospecting was done in that region. The output of gold from South Carolina in 1829 was reported to be worth $3,500. From that time until the Civil War gold mining was a considerable industry in the Southern Appalachians, and although the rich fields of California lured many miners from these lower grade eastern deposits, the fever in California really stimulated gold mining in the East. During the Civil War and for several years after it little gold was mined in this region, but in the seventies, eighties, and nineties gold mining there was more active. The gold-mining industry in the central Carolinas is not now flourishing, because the supply of free-milling ore is decreasing and because the gold can not be extracted from the lower-grade sulphide ore at a profit. Gold will probably be mined in the Appalachian region, however, for many years.

CHAUFFEUR FLEES WITH RICH HAUL

San Francisco, Sept. 3.—A reward of $1,000 was offered today by the Anglo and London-Paris National Bank for the arrest of Charles W. Hayes, a chauffeur, who disappeared Wednesday with an automobile said by bank officials to contain $59,000.

Hayes, a new employee, had been detailed to drive two bank collectors over downtown routes. He disappeared when the day's work was nearly ended. Detectives were informed by Mrs. Hayes that her husband a few days before had destroyed photographs of himself.

Early today the automobile, for which the police had combed the city, was found in the business district, but a car which had been parked near the same point was missing. In the recovered automobile the police found $4,000 in silver.

GOVERNOR COX IS ROUTED WRONG WAY

Governor Cox will not help his case any in Indiana by questioning the veracity of Will H. Hays, Republican national chairman. The voters of this state have confidence in Mr. Hays. They know him personally and at close range. They have observed Governor Cox at a distance, even if it is a short distance, and if called on to accept the word of one or the other they very naturally will believe the man they know to be dependable rather than the one whom they have considered to be trustworthy.

Governor Cox, in a statement given

The Dependable Tractor that Burns Kerosene Completely

The 12-25 H. P. Waterloo Boy Tractor is just the kind of machine that we like to put into the hands of our customers.

There is nothing experimental about it. Its dependability has been fully proved in years of service on the farm. Every time we sell one, we feel the assurance that the owner is going to get fully satisfactory service from it. And that means a great deal to the future of our business.

Right along with its dependability for long-continued good work, there is another big feature that you will appreciate every day you use the Waterloo Boy.

It burns kerosene completely. Its patented kerosene manifold—one that you can get on no other tractor—converts all of the low-priced fuel into a highly-combustible gas, enabling the engine to get full power from every drop.

Be sure to come in some day soon and get fully acquainted with the Waterloo Boy.

out yesterday, is quoted as saying, "Enough is known, now thru Mr. Hays' headquarters to convince the public that as the head of a great organization he has received the public and at an official hearing has denied the truth." He explained further, "I can not believe a single word he says on the subject" and intimated that Mr. Hays had sworn to what he knew to be false. Indiana citizens, even violent Democratic partisans, will not believe that Will H. Hays perjured himself or that he would intentionally deceive the public.

The party leaders, apparently, are permitting the campaign fund controversy to get the better of their tempers. Governor Cox displays an unexpected lack of poise in the bitterness of his attack on the Republican chairman. The Democratic nominee naturally was a bit piqued at the puncturing of his bubble concerning that gigantic Republican campaign fund. But the impression is very general that Governor Cox was the victim of supporters who had more enthusiasm than sense and he made an error of judgment and was at fault merely in being taken in by their fanciful figures.—Indianapolis Star.

DOG CEMETERY.

William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives, president of the Maryland State Society and connoisseur on patriotic lore, who has been continuously in the employ of Congress since 1881, has dedicated a portion of his estate in Chevy Chase as a Congressional Dog Cemetery, says the Washington Star.

One of the mounds in this cemetery marks the resting place of a pet dog owned by Mrs. Walter H. Stineas, wife of a Rhode Island member. This dog was a great favorite in the congressional circle.

Mr. Page has just buried in this cemetery a water spaniel which he believes deliberately sacrificed her life through mother love to save one of her pups. He is having a monument made to be erected over this dog's grave.

A. L. Lowe, of Lynnhaven, Va., born in Germany in 1844, served as seaman in the U. S. navy during the Civil war. He enlisted in the U. S. army at the age of 76, to fight Germany, serving five months, and is officially credited as being the oldest soldier on our side. Two grandsons also served.

CUTTING DOWN THE FORGE

A representative of the National Federation of Federal Employees has issued a statement to the effect that 124,000 employees have been dropped from the swollen war lists of the Government. At the same time purely partisan claims are being made that great numbers of unnecessary clerks are employed in the Government.

One can hear most anything nowadays, but the facts are that during July, which was supposed to be a high month in laying off the war workers, the separations in the Government service totaled 4,908, and an addition was made of 2,905 employees. The War Department showed the largest new reduction, which reached 1,729. The total reduction made in the employes of the Navy Department was 151. The Post Office department showed an increase, as also did the Department of Interior and the Department of Commerce.

The proved facts of the case are that the Government machinery is growing very rapidly and while there are a good many reductions in the force, still these are offset by actual requirements for additional help, which supplemented by the usual number of jobs doled out as the result of "political pull" keeps the number of Federal employes unnecessarily high, resulting in the usual burden which the taxpayers must bear.

BEADS ODDLY STRUNG

(By I. D. Claiborne.)

I ran into Estill Park over here, but I am not ready to report on him yet. I know that he has done something, but don't know just what it is.

I first brought Battle Nall into newspaper fame and would like to keep him famous, but Fluke has served notice that Bat's name shall not appear in this sheet again.

When I arrived in Central City located at the McDowell House, and was pleased, surprised and amused to find my old friend, Tom Stevens, on the desk as night clerk. Tom says he is going to send for Goodman to complete the old Foster House trio. But I told him it wasn't no use now.

A man came into my shop yesterday, and said, "Hey! I can give you an odd news item. I know where there is a stone milldam, built forty years ago, in which the masons enclosed a quart of fine old whisky." But I told him I would not dare publish it; that Fluke and Bat Nall would dynamite that dam before daylight.

A number of people over here who have seen my "Beads Oddly Strung" have asked me to incorporate that feature in the Argus, but I suspect it is a plan they have hatched to ruin the paper, and I shall steer clear of it.

I have had occasion to pass thru Hartford on the M. H. & E. Lightning Clipper several times within the past two weeks and the temptation to detrain and run up town and hug the electric light poles was wellnigh irresistible. But I shall blow into the old Murg afore long if I have to miss an issue of this Nulenberg Journal to do it.

Fluke, Bill Dean says if you will make that fatted calf a sheep he will go snookers with you and we three will have a feast on the banks of the river Green; and for goodness sakes make it a sheep.

With some forty odd candidates for the Ohio County offices next year I am mighty glad I am not there to have to choose between friends and near friends. They will have candidates over here, but they can't tell me what a good friend they have always been to me.

I won't dun my own subscribers until I get better acquainted with them, but you fellows who are behind with the Republican ought to pay up and then pay a year in advance. With the present unheard-of prices for paper and labor, a news paper can not afford to carry delinquents.

These heads have at least one virtue—they steer clear of politics.

I think I served notice sometime ago that I would not long remain away from a newspaper desk. The man who has not had a newspaper experience knows nothing of hard work, poverty and genuine happiness. There is a bit of pardonable pride in having several thousand people read what one writes. Everybody loves to have his say, and the bigger the audience the better he likes it. But no more daily work for me. I am cured of that aspiration. Hossing my own job on a lazy country weekly is good enough for me.

HARTFORD LANDS

THREE IN A ROW

Hartford defeated Rob Roy Saturday in a loosely played contest which was changed from a pitchers' battle to a slugging match by a drizzling rain in the sixth inning. Rob Roy was held scoreless until the sixth, while Hartford had scored three markers, when the visiting slug-gers turned loose and hammered in eight runs. The home team came back in the seventh and scored seven, while each side scored one in the eighth. Williams was on the mound for the locals. Claud Taylor made a good start for the visitors but was relieved in favor of Monroe just after his team had made their eight runs in the sixth. Due to slippery balls and a damp field Monroe could not control his stuff nor could his team-mates offer much defense.

Rob Roy 0 0 0 0 8 0 10—9 8
Hartford 0 1 0 1 1 0 7 11—11 13

McHenry and Hartford played their fourth game here Sunday, which resulted in a Hartford win. The games now stand, two wins for both teams. The tie will be played off on the local diamond Saturday.

Owens and Glenn contested the battery for Hartford and Parrot and Y'helps for McHenry. Owens twirled air tight ball and but for the drizzling rain which fell throughout the contest would have deserved a shot out. Glenn suffered a severely bruised hand but staid in the game. Parrot pitched a steady game but was relieved in the sixth by Reed. Watson performed brilliantly at short for the McHenry boys, miking a one-handed stab of a ball in the fifth which had HIT labeled all over it.

The game would have been a real contest if the rain had held off, which prohibited both pitchers from showing any real stuff and slowed up the fielding.

Score by Innings: R H E
McHenry 0 0 0 0 1 0 2 0 2—5 3 3
Hartford 0 0 1 1 0 2 1 1 x—6 11 2

Hartford and Simmons locked horns here Monday in the most exciting game of the season. Although the home boys hammered themselves into the lead in the third inning and were never overhauled, the game was a fight from start to finish and many a would be rally by the visitors was cut off by air-tight pitching and spectacular fielding. Bates pitched a great game for the locals, coming out of all pluches in fine form until the ninth when loose fielding and a couple of hits netted the visitors three runs and came near tying the score. Calbert, a Memphis Southern league twirler, was on the mound for the visitors. "Senator" Taylor made a half-raising catch in the third when he went back in center field and took a hit that looked good for a safety. Glenn, who has been doing the receiving for the locals, proved that he was a Tris Speaker when he was forced to play the outfield on account of a bruised hand, handling six chances without a bobbie, the last of which saved the game.

Score by Innings: R H E
Simmons 1 0 0 0 0 0 1 3—5 6 5
Hartford 0 0 1 1 2 0 0 2 x—6 8 5
